

Endorsement of Candidacy:

Johannes Rebane
Candidate for At-Large Student Senator 2010/2011

In the past three years at UBC, Johannes Rebane has proven himself to be a passionate, intelligent, and adept student politician. Specifically focusing his efforts on academic affairs, Johannes has committed himself to improving student experiences in a number of ways. His position as the 2009/2010 AMS VP Academic has allowed him to further his endeavors of improving academic conditions on campus, with innovative and engaging initiatives. Having worked closely with University administrators and faculty, Johannes is well prepared to effectively and tactfully represent students on the UBC-Vancouver Senate.

Representative of his efficacy in working through Senate and academic red tape at the university, Johannes spearheaded the development of a B.A./B.Com. dual degree program which is coming to Senate for final approval this spring, among many other academic projects. Demonstrative of his keen and honed intellect, this combination of disciplines gives him a diverse academic background, necessary for effective student representation. Given my past experiences with Johannes on the former AMS Academic Quality Committee, and in previous employment, I feel that he is an ideal candidate for the UBC Senate, and has the attributes ideal for the position as a Student Senator-at-Large.
